

PACKER SURE HALL CASE CAN BE SOLVED

Noted Detective Indicates Willingness to Work on Murder.

MILLS CALLED AGAIN

Troopers Surprise Sexton by New Turn of Their Questioning.

DISCARD ANOTHER CLEW

Officials of County Find Nothing Mysterious About 'Mystery Men.'

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 3.—As far as the officials of Middlesex and Somerset counties are concerned the investigation of the Hall-Mills murder mystery was at a standstill to-day.

The prosecutor, Joseph E. Strecker of Middlesex, conferred with Col. Norman Schwarzkopf of the State troopers at Trenton. The prospect being bright for bringing in Ellis Parker, Burlington county detective, whose fame is Statewide. The troopers kept on with their work, diligently questioning James Mills, the sexton of Hall's church, at length and approaching him on a line so different from that followed by the county prosecutors that Mills was amazed. As far as could be learned however, he told nothing new, and did not deviate from his previous stories.

Two of the so-called mysterious men, who were heralded as knowing more about the case than any one else, returned to town with complete stories of their wanderings and were sent on their respective ways unimpeded after they had been questioned for an hour or so. They are now out of the case, and another of the clews that the county detectives have been following is discarded.

It appears now that while Hall's reputation in this town had been high his relations with Mrs. Mills were pretty generally suspected and were even talked of among the members of the families involved.

Mystery of Letters.

This talk was guarded, but neither the violent denunciations from some quarters after the bodies were discovered nor the heroic defenses that came from other quarters were fully justified. Events of the next few days are likely to demonstrate this beyond question. That Hall received and perhaps treasured the letters Mrs. Mills wrote is almost certain. That he was careless with them to an extent that made their examination by some one else possible is also generally believed. That he carried them with him is believed highly improbable, and therefore raises the question: How did he happen to have so many of them with him on the night he was murdered? This point will not prove to be of the utmost importance from all indications.

There is excellent reason for believing that the church was used as a post office by Mrs. Mills. It is even believed in some quarters that she left one there the very day of the crime, but there is great doubt as to whether Hall ever received that particular letter.

Did some one else find it, and did the finding of it lead to the tragedy? There is a report as yet unverified that this letter, together with a clipping Mrs. Mills had inclosed, was found on the rectory's body.

Mills Again Questioned.

There is some reason to believe that the State troopers will question Mrs. Hall's brother, William Stevens, who objected the other day to being referred to as "Willie" and to the insinuation that he was not wholly sound mentally. It is probable, too, that they will ask whether William on occasions carried messages from Mrs. Mills to the rectory, his brother-in-law. There is a well founded report that he did act as messenger and that, in fact, he was very fond of Mrs. Mills in a somewhat boyish fashion.

The weight of the evidence, too, to straighten out the difference between the statements of Mrs. Hall as to her nocturnal trip to the church in search of her husband, and the statements of Phillips, the watchman at the New Jersey State College for Women across the street from the Hall home. Phillips is positive that Mrs. Hall entered the ground and her home alone toward 2 o'clock in the morning, while Mrs. Hall claims to it that Willie was with her on the trip to the church and returned with her to the house. The whole case presents no more difficult contradiction than this.

Mr. Mills said to-night that Corporal Spearman and Trooper Dickman took him over the case and that he had covered with the prosecutors when they questioned him to-day, and that they told him they had received no information from the county detectives as to the story he had told. He said "there was one big difference" in the way they talked to him.

"They didn't seem to imply that I had done it," he said. "They said they simply wanted to get all the facts."

"Did they say whether they were working on any particular story?" Mills was asked.

"Well, they said they believed it was jealousy and therefore done by a jealous person, or men hired by a jealous person or persons."

Glad He Has Alibi.

Mills thought some one must have been "awful mad" to cut his wife's throat in the way in which it was. It was quite beyond his comprehension that men could be hired to do such brutal work. He fully realizes his own position, for he said: "This is a mighty lucky thing for me that I've got a good alibi. If I wasn't able to account for every minute of my time that night, and if they couldn't check that up by reputable people, I'd be behind the bars this minute. As it is, they don't know where they are going any more than I do."

The weight of the world has fallen on Mills. He is a very miserable man. The excitement has died down for him and only the sorrow and trouble remain. He is quite a pitiable figure and thinks he is being treated badly. "No body in the church has written to me or come to see me," he said. "I'm miserable. I am still in the worst, no one talks to me. They just pass by. On Sunday I opened the church a little after it was light, and I closed it long after it was dark, so that I

BOYSKATER DIES IN AGONY RATHER THAN TELL OF HURT

Twelve-Year-Old Finishes His Play, "Stalls" Through Supper and Reveals Mortal Injury Only When Moans Escape Him in Delirium.

Elvin Roy Metzler, the twelve year old son of Melville Metzler of 633 South street, Elizabeth, N. J., fell while roller skating with some other boys late Monday afternoon. He felt a pain in his abdomen when he got to his feet, but he would not say anything about it because he was afraid the other boys would think he wasn't equal to them. He skated as vigorously as any of them for another hour and then he went home.

Elvin could not eat any supper. When his mother asked him if he were ill he said that he wasn't. He couldn't quite bring himself to tell her that he felt terrible pain, because he was afraid the doctor would come and he would be put to bed, and if that happened he would not be able to use his roller skates again for a long time. The skates were brand new ones that he had got for his birthday and he was just beginning to master them some very intricate and fast fancy skating movements which he felt certain none of the other boys could do.

So, he said nothing, and went to bed as soon as he had got his lessons. In fact, he was not able to get all of them; his head hurt him and that terrible pain in his abdomen seemed to be trying to kill him. But he got into bed without help, and without letting his father and mother know that anything was wrong with him. This was between 8 and 9 o'clock, and for more than four hours Elvin lay wide awake in bed, in agony, but stoically refusing to utter a sound.

About 1 o'clock yesterday morning the boy became semi-delirious, and no matter how tightly he shut his lips, he could not help groaning. His mother, already awake because she was worried about her boy, heard him. She got out of bed, went into the room and found Elvin doubled almost into a knot, so intense was the pain he suffered. He was awakened by the boy's father, and Elvin was hurried in an automobile to St. Elizabeth's Hospital. He was unconscious then, and died two hours later. Surgeons said he had suffered serious internal injuries, and had he told his parents about his hurt when he came home to supper his life might have been saved.

Mystery House Searched.

Mills was asked about a claim made by some spiritualist down in Florida, who has written that he was in communication with Mrs. Mills and told her she was going to meet a sudden and violent ending. Mills said the man might be telling the truth, but that he has found no letters from him to his wife.

The search of "the house of mystery," as the Phillips farmhouse now is known, has been completed by the State troopers. All the ground about the place where the bodies were found has been examined.

Mills has written Parker, the detective, asking him to come here as an investigator, and she has also written to Strecker, asking that Parker be engaged to work on the case. Parker came here once, but unofficially. He looked over the ground with deep interest. The methods followed so far in the investigation, however, are so vitally different from the thoroughgoing method that he pursues in such investigations that he would labor under great handicap. In some ways he is so different from the troopers that he would have to be busy with several hundred witnesses together on various cases in which I am concerned that I don't see how I could do much on the New Jersey case. I am sure that Mr. Strecker should ask me to help him, until I get some of my work out of the way. I believe the case can be solved."

James O'Malley, Supreme Court Justice, in New York yesterday signed an order permitting the removal of the body of Dr. Edward W. Hall from the Green-Wood Cemetery, Brooklyn, for an autopsy at the Kings County Morgue. The order was granted at the request of District Attorney Banton and was presented to Detective Lieutenant John R. Ferguson, representing A. M. Beckman, prosecutor, of Somerset county.

The Jersey authorities will next apply to the Board of Health of Kings county for a permit to remove the body to the morgue. It may be several days before the examination is made, according to Detective Ferguson. Only a superficial examination was made of the body after the murder, according to the New Jersey authorities, and it was deemed important to have a thorough autopsy to clear up several disputed points.

In his affidavit to the court, District Attorney Banton recommended that the body be exhumed "in the interest of justice for the purpose of determining the nature of the wounds and the cause of death of Edward W. Hall."

There is strong belief here that the autopsy on the body of Hall will reveal much and give the troopers and the prosecutors new material to work on. It is reported here that Dr. Otto H. Schultz of New York is to attend the autopsy as an observer.

UNCLE JOE HEADS WEST BY TRAIL HE TOOK AT 4

Motors in Wake of Dad's Prairie Schooner.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—His old slouch hat cocked on the side of his head Uncle Joe Cannon started out by automobile to-day for Danville, Ill., traveling over the old national pike he and his parents followed eighty-three years ago in emigrating westward.

The veteran legislator was full of pep as he stepped into his car at the Capitol and told Lester Morris, for ten years his chauffeur, and his son, companion on the trip to "give her the gas."

He waved the old hat, reached for a cigar and smiled.

Just before leaving he received a telegram from H. H. Franklin, the automobile manufacturer at Syracuse, N. Y., offering his best car, open or closed, and his truck driver at "Uncle Joe's" disposal, but the offer was declined.

"This old car is good enough for me and I like to ride with Lester," he said.

HARDING BUYS HOUSE WHERE HE WAS BORN

To Restore Homestead, Now Storehouse—May Occupy It.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Ohio, Oct. 3.—That President Harding expects to return to the place of his birth, and his boyhood days on his retirement from the White House was indicated to-day when French Crow, postmaster at Marion and personal friend of the President, announced in his behalf purchased the old Harding homestead in North Bloomfield township, Morrow county.

Mr. Crow said the President intended to restore the house in which he lived until he went to Marion to seek his fortune. The building for a number of years has been used as a storehouse.

The homestead of 266 acres has been in possession of Harry Erickson, a farmer.

WOMEN SAY THEY MADE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

Mrs. Welzmueller Writes Syracuse Used 'Replica'

The Women's Progressive Democratic Alliance, of which Mrs. Louis Reed Welzmueller, Deputy Market Commissioner, is president, will support Alfred E. Smith and the other Democratic nominees in the coming election.

In a letter to Mr. Smith yesterday Mrs. Welzmueller said: "The platform adopted by the convention at Syracuse is a replica of that set forth by the Women's Progressive Democratic Alliance, which has for its purpose the putting into effect of such reforms as would give justice to the people."

LAWSON STRANGELY DROPS OUT OF SIGHT

Boston, Oct. 3.—The whereabouts of Thomas W. Lawson, financier, who has put his South Shore estate, Dreamworld, on the auction block to make up for stock market losses, was still a mystery to-night. Relatives, business associates and friends were without word from him since he left the home of his sister, Miss Mary Lawson, at South-west Harbor, Me., yesterday.

It appeared to be fairly well agreed among those interested to-night that, upset over the loss of the homestead which he built and furnished at a cost of about $3,500,000 and in which he had spent his life, now scattered by death and marriage, he had decided to go somewhere for a change of scene. The ranch home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry McCall, at Princetown, Ore., was considered the most likely place.

With the financier, who is now in his sixty-fifth year, is a maid, a servant of many years' service in the Lawson household, always has accompanied him to care for his things, his associates said, and when he decided suddenly yesterday morning to leave his sister's summer home he directed the maid to accompany him.

Mr. Lawson's health had not been good recently, Horace T. Fogg, one of his trustees, said he thought Mr. Lawson was not fit and suggested that he might have decided to visit Oregon.

Mr. Lawson went several weeks ago to Southwest Harbor to stay with his sister. The great Dreamworld property built to satisfy a wish of his wife, and become first lonely and then a financial burden. Saturday night the word went out that he was selling Dreamworld to get money to meet his debts. Sunday night he telephoned from Southwest Harbor to ask how the public had taken the news. Yesterday he left the Main town, saying that he was not certain where he would go. He has not been heard from since.

It was thought he might go direct to Dreamworld, but inquirers there to-day were told by the trustees who are preparing the place for sale on the auction block that they had no word of Mr. Lawson's whereabouts at Young's Hotel in this city, where he has maintained offices for years, with a secretary in charge. It was said that there was no information from the chief.

BEND, Ore., Oct. 3.—Inquiry at the McCall Ranch near Princetown to-day indicated that no word has been received from Thomas W. Lawson, believed to be on his way here, according to eastern dispatches. Hence Montgomery, his daughter, declared that if her father was on his way West, he had received no intimation of it.

STOKES ACTS TO RENEW HIS FIGHT FOR DIVORCE

Hotel Proprietor Asserts He Has New Evidence.

W. E. D. Stokes took first steps yesterday to reopen the divorce suit against Mrs. Helen E. Stokes, invoking a technicality of law which he declares nullifies his former reverse.

His wife defeated the first divorce action and won a separation decree in her own account with substantial alimony. Through the elevation of Justice Edward R. Finch to the Appellate Division the Stokes attorneys have raised the question whether the formal decree of separation can be signed, and also sought additional evidence has been discovered against Mrs. Stokes which would warrant a new trial.

Notice of motion to restore the case to the trial calendar will be filed in the Supreme Court to-day, and papers were served yesterday upon Martin Littleton, attorney for Mrs. Stokes, according to Nugent & Nugent of 280 Madison avenue, the newly retained lawyers representing Stokes in the forthcoming action.

DEMOCRATS NOMINATE HAGARTY AND CARSWELL

Will Oppose Bayes and Gannon for Supreme Court.

The Democratic Judiciary Convention of the Second Judicial district yesterday selected William B. Carswell, Assistant Corporation Counsel, and William F. Hagarty as candidates for the Supreme Court vacancies to be filled this fall.

The selection of Carswell, Mayor Hyland's friend, had been expected, but Hagarty had a half dozen candidates in opposition. Hagarty was an unsuccessful candidate for the Supreme Court bench last year. He is a former president of the Crescent Club in Brooklyn.

William R. Bayes, formerly County Judge, and Frank S. Gannon, now on the Supreme Court bench by appointment, are the Republican nominees.

DRUG PEDDLERS GET 8 YEARS.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—The third eight year sentence for a drug peddler was given by Judge McDevitt to-day when he sentenced Hyman Gold to the county prison. The court offered Gold money if he would reveal the source of his supply, but he refused.

Earlier in the day Joseph Bellona pleaded guilty on an indictment of eleven bills and received the same sentence. Yesterday Joseph Weiss began an eight year sentence.

SAYS MRS. RAIZEN REHEARSED KILLING

Jacksonville Hotel Clerk Tells How She Planned Glickstein's Death.

SANITY IS QUESTIONED

Four Alienists, Against Two, Have Declared Her Mind Unbalanced.

In a deposition on file in the County Court in Brooklyn, Albert J. Richardson, clerk at the Royal Palms Hotel at Jacksonville, Fla., described how Mrs. Lillian Raizen, charged with the murder of Dr. Abraham Glickstein, in Williamsburg, virtually rehearsed the killing in Richardson's presence. Mrs. Raizen was at Jacksonville at the time.

"She had asked me if a woman could buy a pistol in Florida," stated Richardson in the deposition. "I told her I did not know. After she had got some information at the desk she came back to me and said she had the information she wanted and that she would leave Jacksonville at 7:45 or 8 o'clock Tuesday morning, and get into Savannah at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, would reach New York on Friday, and would kill him on Saturday and it would come out in the paper some day."

"She told me she had a pistol. She stood there and talked with me until I went off watch and I walked home with her. She opened up her pocketbook and showed me the pistol which was a .32 steel, hammerless Smith & Wesson .32 caliber. She told me what she was going to do; that she was going to walk into his office and she took this thing out of her handbag and pushed it up against me like that, and said: 'I am going to stick it up against him and kill him.'"

Mrs. Raizen, who is in the Raymond Street Jail awaiting trial, had been declared insane by four alienists and sane by two others. To decide whether she should stand trial or be adjudged insane County Judge Martin will hold a public hearing at which the testimony of the alienists will be taken. The depositions now on file represent the testimony of persons down South, in Chicago and elsewhere, all bearing on the question of sanity.

Mrs. Mary E. Robbins met Mrs. Raizen in Jacksonville and testified to a conversation in which Mrs. Raizen spoke of the "strange influence" which she had over her even after she had married.

"Her sister, I believe, knew the man," said Mrs. Robbins, "and had warned her against him. It seemed to her that her sister was going with other women. He was not loyal to her."

In Mrs. Robbins's opinion Mrs. Raizen was rational on all subjects but that concerning Dr. Glickstein.

MONTCLAIR GOLF CLUB IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

New $250,000 House Being Built Is Undamaged.

Fire destroyed the old clubhouse of the Montclair Golf Club on Mount Prospect road, Verona, N. J., at 8 o'clock last night. The building was a combination of stone and brick structure, which has been in use twenty years. The blaze spread so rapidly that the fire department was unable to check it. They were able, however, to save the nearby house and the log cabin which H. G. Schieren presented to the club some time ago.

More than 3,000 automobiles came toward the blaze from every direction. The automobiles halted, traffic to Verona, Caldwell, Essex Fells and other towns in the vicinity and there were many who volunteered to fight the fire. The fire started in the kitchen, where a defective fuse. The loss was estimated at $75,000, of which $30,000 is covered by insurance.

The course at the club, which is near the Upper Montclair Golf Club, the Essex Fells Club, the New Newark Club and others, recently was enlarged to twenty-seven holes. A new building costing $250,000 is being built, about a mile from the old clubhouse, which burned last night. Members of the club include E. H. Wells, Ellis P. Barie, W. L. Conwell, Philip Goodell, E. L. Van Wie and John Reis.

CHICAGO'S NOISY SPOOK AGAIN ELUDES POLICE

North Side Resounds With Weird Screamings.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Despite a special guard of police, the presence of a squad of newspaper reporters and photographers and more than 1,000 other persons there was a repetition early to-night of the weird knockings and screamings which terrified the neighborhood on the North Side last night.

When the cries first issued from the residence district around Clifton and Seminary avenues last night a riot broke out. Through the elevation of Justice Edward R. Finch to the Appellate Division the Stokes attorneys have raised the question whether the formal decree of separation can be signed, and also sought additional evidence has been discovered against Mrs. Stokes which would warrant a new trial.

At sunset to-night squads of patrolmen began filtering through the neighborhood again determined to solve the mystery. The patrolmen set systematically to work and searched every house in a square block, but all in vain. Up until a late hour the "spook" was still making the weird ring and defying all efforts toward its detection.

NEW HOMICIDE COURT OPENED WITH BLESSING

Jurists and Prosecutor Deliver Addresses at Ceremony.

With addresses by William McAdoo, Chief Magistrate; Joab H. Banton, District Attorney, and Magistrate Frederick E. House, New York city's first homicide court was opened yesterday in what was formerly Part 2 of the Traffic Court at 200 Mulberry street.

Hereafter all cases of manslaughter or murder not taken directly to the Grand Jury will be tried in this court instead of being referred to the District Attorney's homicide bureau for investigation.

The first case was that of Isadore Renert, driver of a fruit wagon, charged with having run over and killed Getzel Sahi in East Houston street two weeks ago. Magistrate House held $1,000 bail and adjourned the hearing until Friday. The court was opened with a blessing by the Rev. Arthur P. Heenan, representing Archbishop Hayes.

STUDENT AT N.Y. UNIVERSITY ONLY 15, JUST 4 FEET TALL

David Gladstone, Freshman, Is Also Class C Champion Chess Player of New Jersey—Sports Enthusiast Despite Size.

New York University has a boy prodigy in David Gladstone, a freshman in the College of Arts and Pure Science, who is only 15 years old and but four feet tall. He finished grammar school at the age of 11 and was graduated from Barringer High School, Newark, last June, being among the first five in the honor roll of the graduating class. Gladstone, like the Gladstone of English fame, will study law after he receives his preliminary degree of bachelor of arts at the university.

Besides being a good student, Gladstone is a chess player of considerable ability. By winning a tournament recently he became the Class C champion chess player of New Jersey. He is now playing thirty-five games by correspondence. Though unable to take part in school athletics because of his size, he is nevertheless a sports enthusiast. Gladstone has his own views on current subjects and is well informed on affairs of the country. When asked what he thought of prohibition, Gladstone had this to say: "Personally, I think prohibition is a good thing, despite the contempt for the law which it has created. There is nothing the matter with the law; it is the people of the country who are at fault, because they refuse to give their cooperation. The majority of the people are in favor of the law, but they are not as active as the noisy minority who oppose it. They try to tell you of the innumerable drinkers who never touched a drop before prohibition. Tommyrot! That is substantial proof to a fellow who wants to believe it, but empty talk to an unbiased mind."

MYSTERIOUS ARROW HITS MAN IN 5TH AV.

Furrier Faints From Surprise—Police Fail to Find Archer.

Abraham Seligman of 49 St. Nicholas Terrace was standing at an open window in the rear of his fur shop at 557 Fifth avenue late yesterday afternoon when he felt a sudden, sharp pain in the left side, just below the heart.

He saw that an arrow had been shot through the window, had ripped through his office coat and shirt and was imbedded in his flesh half an inch.

Seligman was not badly hurt, but the sudden shock and surprise of finding an arrow caused him to faint and fall to the floor. Employees of the firm, E. Seligman & Co., called an ambulance from Flower Hospital and Dr. Modantz dressed the wound. A few minutes later Seligman was able to go home. Dr. Modantz said there would be no serious effects from the injury.

Detectives of the East Fifty-first street station searched the buildings and the roofs of neighboring structures but were unable to find any one who had been practicing archery. On the roof of 15 East Fifty-first street, which is almost directly behind the Seligman building, they found another arrow similar to the one which hit Seligman, but there was no bow and nothing to indicate who had been shooting. The detectives believe that the shooting was accidental.

They believe that the arrow was shot by some one practicing on a roof behind the Seligman office.

Mrs. Audrey Blake, 25, whose husband, Arthur Blake, is manager of the Isthmian steamship lines of 39 and 41 Cortlandt street, was tied in a chair yesterday afternoon by two men in her apartment on the top floor of the four story apartment house at 1611 Foster avenue, Brooklyn, and robbed of an engagement ring worth $800, a solitaire worth $900 and $165. The men escaped.

The home of Elmer A. Sperry at 1505 Albemarle road, Flatbush, was entered some time last week and jewelry valued at $700 was taken. Mr. Sperry is the head of the Sperry Gyroscope Company on the Flatbush avenue extension in Brooklyn. He is on a trip to Japan with Mrs. Sperry. The small haul of the burglars is due partly to the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Sperry have much of their jewelry with them. The house was ransacked, the jewelry taken consisting mostly of heirlooms.

Miss Pearl White, motion picture actress, reported yesterday that burglars obtained from her apartment on the second floor of 15 West Forty-ninth street $25,000 worth of jewels. A partial list includes a pearl necklace, a pearl ring, a gold watch and bracelet and several diamond rings.

Miss White found that the robbers had thrown on the floor and trampled a fur coat that she said is worth $30,000. They neglected to take this coat and other furs worth $20,000.

KEMAL AIDS ITALIAN SHIPPING.

ROME, Oct. 3.—Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Turkish Nationalist leader, to-day informed the Italian authorities that he had placed at their disposal the disposal of the Italian steamship companies whose offices in Smyrna were destroyed, to enable them to resume their services. The companies have ordered their ships to return to Smyrna and arrange for a resumption of sailings.
